Why Department of Banking and Insurance?

Banks are the most important structures in the financial system and banking has existed for centuries. Bankers know everything, almost everything. While working in the brick industry, you know your field very well, but when you are a banker, you know both the finance industry and the brick and mortar industry. Being involved in such a profession creates a very good personal and professional experience for young people.

On the other hand, insurance graduates create career records of individuals or institutions insured against fire, illness and accident, and ensure the legality of insurance payments through inspections and controls. The increase in insurance, which takes place over the internet, has led the industry to move in a different direction. This change has created different employment opportunities for insurance graduates.

Job opportunities for our college graduates

According to the UNI-VERI report prepared under the leadership of the Presidential Human Resources Office, 35.9% of banking and insurance graduates work in the following sectors;

- Production
- Professional, scientific and technical activities,
- Service and accommodation industry,
- Education,
- Real estate activities,
- Transportation and Storage,
- Build,
- Information, and Communication,
- Social Services,
- Government Policy
- Culture, arts and entertainment,

They find the opportunity to work in sectors such as.
